ALFRED P. EDGERTON.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 15.—A. P. Edgerton, formerly United States Civil Service Commissioner, died last night at Hicksville.

Alfred P. Edgerton was born in Plattsburgh, N.Y., on January 11, 1833. He began his career as the editor of a newspaper in his native town, but in 1853 removed to New-York to engage in business. In 1857 he went to Ohio and became interested in real estate operations. In 1865 he was elected to the State Senate of Ohio, and in 1868 as a delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention. In 1869 he was elected a member of Congress, and served in the XXXII and XXXIII Congresses, where he was chairman of the Committee on Claims. In 1868 Mr. Edgerton was appointed financial agent of the State of Ohio and held the office three years. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1862 to 1866, and was chairman of the sub-committee that organized the National Convention of 1868. In 1867 he removed to Fort Wayne, though he retained his residence in Ohio till 1862. In 1868 he was chairman of the committee to investigate the frauds on the State Treasury.

In 1869 Mr. Edgerton, with Hugh McCulloch and Philip Housatonic, became lessees of the Indiana and Michigan Canal, and general manager till 1864. In that year he was delegated to the Democratic National Convention of 1868, and he was the delegate-at-large for Lieutenant-Governor of Indiana on the ticket with Thomas A. Hendricks, but was defeated. He was appointed to the General Council of the Indiana State Government, but refused "straight-out" candidates of Governor, and was appointed United States Civil Service Commissioner by President Cleveland. He became president of the Commission, succeeded by Dorman B. Eaton, and remained a member of it till 1889, when he was succeeded by Mr. Lyman.
